Sympathized With Foreigners.

The cases of the Day was the theme of Rev. W. S. Beard's morning sermon at the Congregational church to give the pastor's review of the church work the past year. He likened the church to a great joint stock corporation for service. His pastoral ministrations numbered 150 addresses, officiating at 15 weedings, 16 baptisms, 24 funerals. The church, he said, had been free from debt for three years. Its benevolences, including ecclestastical expenses agregated $6000 with $808 of that amount being contributed to mission enterprises. The large mission of the church in making itself feit as a vital factor in the community life and adapting the Christian spirit to present day needs and problems was emphasized and the achievements of the church for the past year augur great lines for resisting an officer.

Sympathized With Foreigners.

The cases of the state vs. Joseph and Ells Francis, for resisting an officer, were tried before Judge Arnold in the police court Saturday. This is the case where Constable Hastings went to their home to replevin a horse, and they interfered with his civil action. Assistant Prosecuting Attorney S. J. Harvey represented the state and Attorney T. J. Kelley the defendants. Judge Arnold said he was inclined to take a sympathetic attitude towards these foreigners, unacquainted without language and the law, and imposed a fine of $2 without costs in each case.

Representative Armington's Bill Advecates Revision of Statutes-Representative relley's Mileage Resolution Voted-Pierce-Dustin Marriage-Enlarged Stage for Orpheum Theater.

Representative A. H. Armington of Killingly has introduced an important resolution in the general assembly. This calls for the appointment of a committee of seven by Governor Sim-eon E. Baldwin for the purpose of making a complete revision of the general statutes of Connecticut, It has been something on the order It has been something on the order of an unwritten law in Connecticut that the general statutes be recompiled about once in ten years. However, about fourteen years have elapsed since the work was last ordered, and about twelve years since it was last completed.

Following each blengts assets of pleted.

Following each blennial session of the legislature, with its effect on the statutes through the repealing and amending of existing statutes and the enactment of new legislation, a record of the changes due to the session is issued, this being commonly known as the Blue book. After several sessions of the legislature and several issues of the Blue book, though notations of changes are made on the border of pages opposite acts affected in the general statutes, it is not always an easy matter for attorneys, hundreds of town and city officials throughout the state and many other persons to find quickly just what they want. Hence quickly just what they want. Hence the desire for the revision called for in Representative Armington's resolution. The task of revision is a big one, requires a vest amount of work, and the estimated cost to the state is about $30,000.

THE MILEAGE RESOLUTION. What Representative W. P. Kelley's Bill Calls For.

Representative W. P. Kelley's (Killingly) resolution relative to securing mileage for members of the general assembly of Connecticut, which passed the house Thursday and was immediately transmitted to the senate under suspension of the rules, will probably be acted upon in that body at tomorrow's (Tuesday's) session.

There has been an impression in some quarters that the resolution embodies a proposition similar to that made by Comptroller D. P. Dunn to the New Haven road officials and which was not accepted by the latter, but this is not a correct impression. Representative Kelley's resolution directs the comptroller to confer with railroad officials relative to securing mileage for session days only upon the payment to such railroad company the amount of mileage which is allowed to each member of the general assembly for the session.

Representative Kelley estimates that r the session. Representative Kelley estimates that Representative Kelley estimates that there will be about sixty session days for the present general assembly. In talking about the matter Saturday he referred to the liberal rates for which commutation tickets are sold for use between stations in Connecticut, in some cases as low as a half a cent a mile, and expressed the opinion that the form in which his resolution has been put will allow of reaching some satisfactory solution of the vexing mileage proposition. As his resolution is drawn provision is made for use of the mileage ticket on session days only, not for use of the ticket on Sundays or other days when the legislature is not at work.

Mr. Kelley's bill providing for closins Alexander's lake to fishing for a period of two years, in compliance with the expressed wish of the state fish and game commission, will be introduced this week.
